Two Negroes Kidnapped; One Flogged

HARPERSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Police said six white men kidnaped two young Negro brothers Saturday night and flogged one of them because they said they didn't want Negroes working in service stations in the area.

"We think we know who two of them were," said Raymond Rogers, chief of police in this rural town in central Alabama. "They didn't come home last night and I guess they know we are after them, but it's just a matter of time."

He declined to identify them. Rogers said the white men, riding in two cars, abducted the Negroes as they left a service station.

He said they took them 12 miles outside of town and stripped Henry Jones, 19, to his underwear, tied him to a tree and beat him with a belt. He was not hurt seriously, the chief said, but he had welts on his legs.

Didn't Beat Him The white men also took Henry's brother David, 13, but did not beat him, Rogers said.

He quoted the youths as saying the white men told them: "We are not going to have any Negroes working at the service stations in Harpersville."

The older boy has been employed at a gasoline station here about two years.

The boys told police the white men were not masked and that they would be able to identify them.

Harpersville, a small rural community, is about 30 miles south of Birmingham, and is on the edge of the "black belt" of Alabama, where Negroes greatly outnumber whites.

Sightseers Endangered

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Six sightseers spent a harrowing two hours Sunday trapped in a derailed incline car perched precariously some 400 feet above ground. One wrong move, police said, and the car could have easily plunged to the street below.

Firemen and rescue workers worked frantically to secure the car with ropes so they could lead the two men, a woman and three children to safety. The six escaped unhurt.

The car jumped the track at the Duquesne incline overlooking Pittsburgh's downtown section. After being derailed, it slid about 20 yards and came to a stop against an iron railing.

Rescued were Bruce W. Middleton, 31, of nearby Monroeville; his sons, Bruce, 6, and Bruce, 3; and Richard Thompson, 29; his wife, Eroy, 27, and their daughter, Jennifer, 2, of Lemont, Centre County, Pa.

Signs Show Attacks Started Early In Pa.

By The Associated Press

THE PATTERN of Pennsylvania's 1960 election campaign already is becoming apparent as Republicans and Democrats mount early attacks on each other.

Republicans plan to open their campaign formally Sept. 10 with Democrats to follow Sept. 15. But both sides put formalities aside and got in some early digs at each other over the weekend.

Out of the initial sampling of oratory it was clear the campaign would see:

(1) Republicans driving hard for farm area votes with an intensified grass roots campaign that will concentrate heavily on the record of the Democratic Lawrence administration.

(2) Democrats making an issue of GOP leadership in the State Senate where 84-year-old M. Harvey Taylor (Dauphin) is the architect of GOP legislative policy.

Has Prediction

"Rural counties will run up election returns for the Republican candidates better than ever," predicted GOP State Chairman George I. Bloom Saturday. He added that the party also would do "very well" in Philadelphia, a Democratic stronghold.

Rep. Albert W. Johnson (McKean), a member of the GOP House campaign committee, said Republicans plan to hammer away at Gov. David L. Lawrence's record on road construction, old-age driver physical examinations, school subsidies and finance.

Lawrence, speaking before a state Young Democrats convention in Harrisburg, set what is expected to become a familiar theme in the Democratic drive for control of the Legislature for the first time since 1937.

The State Senate, he said, is controlled by "an ancient and relentless leadership" — completely out of touch with modern problems—whose mind has remained unchanged for decades. His speech didn't mention anyone by name.

Sharp Criticism

Johnson sharply criticized an administration request — rejected by the 1959 Legislature—for additional road construction money by boosting the state tax on gasoline from five to six cents a gallon.

He said it "would have merely financed the Lawrence plan to take over the city streets of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh to put them on the state system."

But Lawrence argued that Republicans shouldn't criticize the administration's highway construction record because they have failed to provide adequate funds to build roads that are needed. He asked:

"Can this Republican leadership in good conscience demand more and more of the highways—that we so desperately do need—when they reject legislation that will provide the money to build these roads?"

Johnson accused the administration of "shoddy treatment" of older persons by adopting a highway safety program that requires older persons to take periodic physical examinations before being licensed to drive motor vehicles. Meantime, Philadelphia's Nixon-for-President Committee announced plans for an all-out voter registration drive in that city.

Platforms Compared

NEW YORK (AP)—Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, said Sunday both the Republican and Democratic party platforms indicate "the Negro stands to gain no matter which party wins."

Adlai Says GOP May Brand Demo Tactics As Red

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — Adlai E. Stevenson, after talks with Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic presidential nominee, said Sunday the Republicans evidently are going to try to link criticism of the Eisenhower administration and Vice President Richard M. Nixon with communism.

The two-time Democratic presidential candidate told a news conference on the lawn of Kennedy's summer home here that the GOP National Convention last week gave "unmistakable evidence that the Republicans were going to treat any criticism of the Eisenhower administration or Nixon as defeatist, opportunist, and in some mysterious way related to communism."

Kennedy and Stevenson at the joint conference said they discussed foreign policy and the approaching campaign during a two-hour cruise aboard Kennedy's 52-foot cruiser Marlin, and at Kennedy's home.

Stevenson, asked whether they had discussed any Cabinet role for him in the event of Kennedy's election, replied: "If you mean my future service to the Kennedy administration, we have not discussed that today and I dare say we will not until later."

The former Illinois governor said he knew of no pressure by his supporters for Kennedy to promise him a Cabinet post.

Stevenson, one of those defeated by Kennedy for the nomination, said he would campaign actively for the Massachusetts senator and also serve as a foreign policy advisor.

Kennedy said Stevenson would make campaign speeches in California, New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania and other states, starting in September.

Asked whether he expects his backers to support Kennedy wholeheartedly, Stevenson said "I hope so." He said he will work toward that end.

Kennedy said his talks with Stevenson stressed, foreign policy "which is the great issue of our time."

Castro Still Recovering From His Recent Illness

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro is "still convalescing" from his recent illness, Havana radio stations announced Sunday. They added that he is improving "satisfactorily."

Dag Is Rebuked At Congo Dinner

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo, (AP) — A Congo leader told U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld to stop his face Saturday night that U.N. forces had fallen down on the job and had permitted "secession to consolidate" in Katanga Province.

Vice Premier Antoine Gizenga spoke at a dinner honoring Hammarskjöld and attended by an array of diplomats and U.N. and Congo officials. Most sat grim and silent as Gizenga spoke.

White-faced, Hammarskjöld did not applaud when the vice premier in reply he declared: "We cannot adopt the line of action which in our minds would not correspond with our responsibility to the community of peoples."

While asserting "we have not lost confidence in the United Nations," Gizenga insisted Belgium pull all its troops from this nation to which it granted independence on June 30.

"The people of the Congo do not understand why we, against whom an aggression has been committed, we who are in our land, we who have made an appeal to international armed forces, are systematically and methodically disarmed while the aggressors, the Belgians, who are here in a conquered country, still have their arms and their power of death and are simply being asked to regroup in certain parts of our Congo which some dare call 'Belgian bases.'"

This was a reference to the efforts of U.N. troops to disarm Congolese soldiers, whose revolt against their white officers plunged the country into turmoil. Gizenga bitterly accused the U.N. of permitting the rulers of Katanga, who have declared their independence, to consolidate their position. Katanga has warned U.N. troops to stay out and the U.N. has ignored Congolese demands to send forces into the province.

IN AN atmosphere of obvious tension and uneasiness following Gizenga's speech, a U.N. spokesman said Belgian units had left Banningville, Libenge and Coquilhatville in Equator Province.

The spokesman did not say whether the troops were being pulled out to Belgium or to one of the two Belgian bases in the Congo whose legality the Congolese government is contesting.

The Belgian government announced last week that 1,500 Belgian soldiers would be evacuated to Belgium. About 10,000 Belgian troops are still in the Congo, most of them at the Kitona and Kamina bases or in Katanga.

Turnpike Crash Kills Six, Including Five Of Family

LEBANON, Pa. (AP)—Six persons—five of them members of a family returning from a summer vacation—were killed Sunday when three cars collided on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

The dead were David R. Sweeney, 24, of Philadelphia; Lee Roy Helton, 30, of Springfield, a suburb of Cincinnati; his wife, Shirley, 28, and three of their five sons, Timothy, 3, Daniel, 2, and Kenneth, 1.

Two other sons, Larry, 5, and Garry, 7, were hurt. Garry was in serious condition at a hospital and Larry's condition was listed as satisfactory.

Three other persons also were hurt, but only slightly. They were Edward A. Johnson, 40, of Pittsburgh, his wife, Wilma, 38, and a daughter Susan, 8. Another daughter, Sarah, 3, was the only person involved in the accident to emerge uninjured. Police said Sweeney's car crossed a median strip and hit Helton's car head-on smashing in the front end. Sweeney's car then bounced back and hit the front of Johnson's car.

"It happened right in front of me and I didn't really see what happened," Johnson said. "It was like a big explosion and parts of the cars went up in the air. Then one car bounced back, skidded around and hit mine, front to front. We were very lucky."

It was three hours before the living and the dead were extricated from the wreckage.

The Heltons were returning from a vacation in Atlantic City, N. J., and the Johnsons were driving home from a vacation in New York State. Sweeney was alone.

The collision occurred four miles west of this community near the southeastern part of the state.

Kennedy, Nixon Plan Aggressive Fall Campaigns

By The Associated Press

POLITICAL strategists mapped battle plans Sunday as the most extensive and exhausting presidential campaign in American history confronted Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy.

Both men—Nixon, the 47-year old Republican nominee, and Kennedy, the 43-year old Democratic nominee have let it be known they are going to wage aggressive campaigns. They will be trying to reach as many voters as possible between now and election day Nov. 8.

Meantime both men had some respite Sunday from the political hurly-burly.

Nixon took his wife and two daughters to church in Washington. Kennedy attended mass at Hyannis, Mass.

Nixon's weekend rest period will end Monday. He has a full round of strategy conferences starting in the morning and early Tuesday morning he takes off on his first campaign swing, heading for Nevada, California, Hawaii and Washington.

Kennedy planned to talk foreign policy Monday morning with Rep. Chester Bowles (D-Conn) his top adviser on overseas problems.

Robert F. Kennedy, the senator's 34-year old brother and campaign manager, was enroute to Washington to begin laying groundwork for the campaign. He will leave here Tuesday for a nationwide tour, heading a task force which will conduct workshops on campaign strategy at regional Democratic meetings.

Sen. Kennedy met ashore and afloat with Adlai E. Stevenson, one of those he beat for the Democratic nomination.

Stevenson went to Hyannis Port, Kennedy's summer home, to pledge his support to Kennedy in the election campaign.

Meeting with newsmen on the lawn of Kennedy's home, Stevenson told them the Republican National Convention last week gave "unmistakable evidence that the Republicans were going to treat any criticism of the Eisenhower administration or Nixon as defeatist, opportunist, and in some mysterious way related to communism."

Part of the Stevenson-Kennedy discussions were carried on during a two-hour trip aboard a Kennedy 52-foot cruiser.

Stevenson was asked whether the two men had discussed any cabinet role for him in the event of Kennedy's election.

Stevenson replied: "If you mean my future service to the Kennedy administration, we have not discussed that today and I dare say we will not until later."

Kennedy said Stevenson would make campaign speeches in California, New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania and other states, starting in September.

Johnson Attack Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic nominee for vice president, began a vigorous attack on the Republican administration's farm program with a speech at Monticello, Iowa. He said the Democrats will push a program to "use the abundance of our farms and factories to help other people."

He said the Republican administration knows about the problem of food shortages throughout much of the world "but there has been no determination there to match the size of the problem with the boldness required to solve it."

U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, the Republican vice presidential nominee, conferred with Secretary of State Christian A. Smith.

Date Of Transaction

By William A. Doyle
Q. You have pointed out that, in buying or selling stocks or other securities, the date that the transaction actually takes place is the date used in reporting for tax purposes. You have also stated that the date of the purchase or sale is printed on the confirmation slip from the brokerage house handling the transaction.

Isn't there some exception to this when the transaction is made during the last few days of the year?

A. You're thinking about the tax rules covering the sale of securities to establish a gain for tax purposes.

If you want to establish a tax gain in a certain year by selling securities in a "regular way" transaction (that's the normal way to trade) the transaction must be made at least four full business days before the end of the year.

However, by specifying "next day delivery" in a transaction on a stock exchange you can sell and establish a tax gain right up to the next to the last business day of the year. In thinking about this, be sure you realize that Saturdays, Sundays and holidays (Christmas, in this case) are not business days.

You can sell and establish a loss for tax purposes right up through the last business day of the year.

Q. I bought 100 shares of a certain stock last year, at $59 a share. The market price of this stock is now about $55 a share. I would like to sell 25 shares this year, 25 shares the following year and so on. After each sale, I would wait at least 30 days

Four Injured In Series Of Accidents

THREE separate accidents in which four persons were injured were investigated over the weekend by State Police of the Stroudsburg Barracks.

The first accident was at 10:30 a.m. Saturday about five miles north of Stroudsburg on Legislative Route 45080 in Pocono Township, when David P. Kite, 19, of 103 S. 34th St., Camden, N. J., failed to negotiate a curve.

Injured was Rose Bennett, with four broken ribs and a ruptured spleen. A late report from the Monroe County General Hospital listed her condition as "fair."

Kite was traveling north on Cherry Lane Road when he skidded off a right turn and crashed into the garage owned by Chester Hallet, East Stroudsburg RD 3.

Faces Arrest

Kite will be charged with reckless driving, police said.

The second accident Saturday was approximately 10 miles west of Stroudsburg on Route 12 in Hamilton Township. The operator, William Zensen, 48, of 819 Belmont Ave., Milmont, received lacerations to his upper lip.

He was taken to the Monroe County General Hospital where he was treated and released.

Zensen told State Police that he was traveling east on Route 12 and as he reached to tune the radio in the car, he ran off the right side of the highway striking a telephone pole and breaking it off near his base.

Police estimated damage at $400.

The third accident happened at 2 a.m. yesterday on Route 209 in Middle Smithfield Township.

Hits Tree, Car, Fence

Police said Ted A. Fish, 21, of 112 East Maplewood Ave., Mechanicsburg, was traveling at a high rate of speed and ran off the highway hitting a tree. The vehicle glanced off the tree and struck the car operated by George Urosvich, 39, of 119 Old Cranberry St., Hazleton.

The Fish vehicle then traveled a distance of approximately 150 yards down the left side of the highway and ran down an embankment hitting a metal fence of the Temple Israel Cemetery.

The car knocked the fence over and came to rest right side up facing the highway approximately 25 feet from the fence.

Fish received lacerations to his head and left ear.

William Banks, a passenger in the Fish car, received lacerations to his neck, face and knee.

Both men were treated at Monroe County General Hospital and released.

Police estimated the damages to the convertible driven by Fish at $2,500, and $300 to the Urosvich car.

Police said Urosvich did not receive any injuries and that Fish will be arrested for reckless driving.

Tax Notices Being Mailed To Residents This Week

BOTH BOROUGHs are slated for tax increases as local tax collectors are readying tax forms to be sent out this week.

John Kitchen, Stroudsburg collector, noted that his district will have a new 25-mill school tax together with a $10 per capita tax for schools.

Kitchen's tax forms will be mailed Thursday. He added that the borough tax is 15 mills and a $5 per capita tax, and that the county tax is six mills.

The forms are to be sent to all residents over 21 and all property owners. It is a resident's duty to notify the county assessor if he fails to receive a form or if his address changes.

The tax brackets are grouped according to a classification set up by the three county commissioners, the county treasurer and the chief assessor. The lowest bracket is housewife, graduating upwards according to occupation.

Kitchen said there will be a two percent discount for payment within the first 60 days, face value for the next 60 days, and a five percent fine after Dec. 1.

Any tax unpaid after April 30 of next year will be reported to the county commissioner for collection. The commissioner will hold the notification for Massachusetts Institute of Technology, did post-graduate work at New York University School of Business Administration, and served in the U. S. Air Force during World War II.

The firm has a Stroudsburg office located at 18 N. Seventh St.

Juvenile Case Being Processed

THE CASE of a 14-year-old Stroudsburg boy, who was involved in an automobile accident on Saturday night, July 23, is being processed in Monroe County Juvenile Court, it was learned last night. His name is being withheld because of his age.

The youth reportedly obtained the keys to a car owned by his sister and drove it west on Route 209. State police of the local barracks said the youth made a U-turn at a point on the highway and was driving east when the car struck a vehicle driven by David Edinger, of Collingswood, N. J.

After striking the Edinger car, the vehicle driven by the youth left the highway and overturned. No one was injured in the mishap.

Two Great Forces

Most of the oratory heard at the two recent political conventions had a strictly partisan tone designed to inspire the party faithful to lend their active support to the duly nominated slate of candidates.

The outstanding exception to this trend was the speech delivered in Chicago last week by former President Herbert Hoover, the leading elder statesman of the Republican Party.

What he said was not political in nature, but rather followed spiritual and patriotic themes which the 85-year-old speaker obviously felt Americans had overlooked far too long.

"...as I look back over my long years of concern with our national problems," Mr. Hoover declared, "I have come to believe that moral forces and certain forces embedded in the soul of America are more important than all of our other issues—for they lay at the base of their solution."

Two of the most serious problems confronting the United States were emphasized by the former president. One of these is the moral slump in America reflected by a mounting crime wave and the indifference of millions of adults during the 14 years following the end of World War Two.

The other is a loss of faith in America. This second, which Mr. Hoover described as a "posture of perpetual apology and seeming shame for ourselves," is the more dangerous.

It leads us to shrink from a bold championing of the free way of life in the presence of foes committed to nationalism at best and communism at worst.

When Mr. Hoover pleaded for a renewal of spiritual force, for a re-dedication of ourselves to the ideals of our forefathers, he laid at the door of each of us a challenge to be worthy of our heritage.

His was an appeal which rose above partisanship and should be accepted regardless of our political registration.

Key Factors: Jobs And Sales

The semiannual earnings report of the United States Steel Corporation, largest of American steel producers, points up at least two current major economic trends.

Not only is the corporation's income for the first six months of the year materially less than last year but its ratio of income to sales is lower. In steel this may relate to a reduced rate of operation, but companies in other industries have reported lower profits even with increased volume.

This is a situation to which a continuing adjustment must be made if consumers are to share through narrower price margins in the progress of technology. At the moment there are reports of steel being sold below the posted prices while there is at the same time speculation as to a possible price rise this fall.

In its employment figures the steel company gives a clue to a situation which is causing concern to the United Steelworkers of America. Of the union's total membership the number unemployed or working less than a normal week is said to be greater than in the recession of 1958.

The United States Steel Company employed an average of 239,207 persons during the second quarter of 1960 as compared with 250,310 in that corresponding period of 1959. Moreover, despite increased pension contributions, its employment costs per man declined from $2,108.80 to $1,959.50. This seems to indicate that with automation a greater number of workers in higher pay grades are being laid off.

If this is the case, it becomes more understandable why seniority rules were a point of deep tenacity in last year's steel strike. It also becomes important to attack a persistent unemployment problem in the nation generally with new emphasis on job-creation and retraining.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Game Of Politics

Every human activity has its rules and regulations. Some are simple, such as the propriety of eating with a fork; some are very complicated like the complex proprieties of family life.

Politics is, of course, a science. It is the science of controlling men's minds and wills. It is also a way of life for those who engage in it actively. The first rule of a really successful politician is that "his finger is always good."

This term comes from auctioneering, in the course of which a man raises his finger and that closes a transaction which might involve large sums. The "finger" is an inviolable contract. Whoever breaks it once is never trusted again.

This must be true of the politician. Once he gives his word, there is no turning on it or he is a dead man politically. The politician also must have a long memory. He cannot pretend that he has forgotten.

He cannot deny that he has given his word. He dare not lie to one of equal rank with himself. These are the proprieties of the game. Every form of social existence has its proprieties. They may not be violated.

The reason, for instance, that a man like James A. Farley, who has long been inactive in politics, is still of importance and still stands out as a figure in national conventions, is that he has the reputation of never having broken faith with any man, of having lived up to his promise and of having quit over a principle and not as the result of a personal row.

This rule applies to every man who wants to succeed in politics. His greatest crime is to go back on his word.

Politicians of the two parties do not hate each other usually. Sometimes they are even very close friends, as, for instance, Joe Martin and Sam Rayburn always have been. General Eisenhower was amateurish when he snubbed President Truman on Inauguration Day—no pro ever cares what an opponent says about him; that is all part of the great game of politics.

Harry Truman appointed President Hoover to a very honorable position and then attacked Hoover's reputation. They have remained close friends.

Were it otherwise, these men of different parties and diverse views would not work together. They have to work together in governors' conferences, in the Senate, in the House of Representatives, on committees.

Therefore, there are proprieties and etiquettes which must be adhered to, even in debate. Such Senators as Huey Long and Joseph McCarthy sometimes, in the heat of debate, forgot the proprieties and it cost them dearly.

Lyndon Johnson, the Democratic leader, and Everett Dirksen, the Republican leader in the Senate, never forgot the proprieties and they managed to put through legislative programs in the national interest, despite vast differences of opinion.

The maverick in politics often does not understand the proprieties and he is shocked when he gets hurt. This happened to Nelson Rockefeller who put his faith in speech writers and public relations men rather than in those who understand both the science and art of politics.

John Kennedy set up one of the most competent and effective political organizations ever seen—surely since the day of Mark Hanna. Richard Nixon has proved to be astute and sure-footed. He is probably the most brilliant political strategist of recent years.

Wendell Willkie did not understand politics at all; he messed up his own show. Thomas E. Dewey is a smart politician, but fails to make people like him. Perhaps he is too cagey.

I have been close to many political figures in several countries. The best operator I ever encountered was Chiang Kai-shek who manipulated himself to a top position to which he was not entitled by rank or seniority by the sheer assertion of will.

John Kennedy's maneuvers in 1960 reminded me of Chiang's in 1925 and 1927. In this country, the most astute political manipulator I have ever known is Richard Nixon who parlayed a single event, the unearthing of the "Pumpkin Papers," into a Presidential nomination by acclamation.

The art of politics is universal. Those who play it badly always lose. Stalin had to murder his colleagues because he had no political art to hold them. Franklin D. Roosevelt brought together a heterogeneous group who had never before agreed on anything. It was absolute political genius.

Mortimer's New York Confidential

By Lee Mortimer
My Confidential Journey!

"Kicking the Gong Around" has, in the past few years, become one of the world's favorite pastimes. And certainly its deadline, far deadlier than war. But before you can go on a binge, you've got to get the makings. And those who sell the dope have to get it from someone who gets it. If you go back far enough, from the farmer who grows it on some wild, windswept mountain plain maybe 10,000 miles away. There is no mystery about where the poppy, hemp and cocoa that become the heroin, marijuana and cocaine of commerce originate. Nor is it a secret who sells it here and in other countries. Nor where or by whom it is processed and shipped.

But what has always puzzled authorities and observers (including me) is where and by whom the contact between producer and distributor is made and how the proceeds of the transaction is handed over.

Though the narcotics industry now rivals any in size and organization, it cannot and does not function in the same manner as other big businesses. Though the raw product is grown by farmers, they do not take it into public markets to sell on market day. Though the profits are staggering, the money cannot be transferred through normal banking channels.

The larger part (but by no means all) of the opium derivative that floods the world grows in Red-owned, dominated or influenced countries or Red slanted "neutralists." Its sale into the free world is part of a Communist tactic to weaken and overthrow it, and to obtain currency and exchange for undercover activities in countries the Reds propose to overthrow.

How then—and where—do the Communist's representatives make their contacts with the agents of the American narcotic combine—and how is the money transferred? Or for that matter, how does dope move from such strong Communist countries as Turkey and Thailand which also are large producers?

That was a question I wanted to resolve. And to do it I had to follow the poppy and those who bought and sold and rectified it, from its source, through low, water-front dives in Yokohama, Hong Kong, Istanbul and Marseilles where it is handled, to swank hotels and cafes in Honolulu, Tokyo, Kowloon, Bangkok, Beirut, Nice, Paris and London, where it is contracted for, with many stops between and a memorable past-midnight race on a narrow curving road along the Mediterranean with death close behind.

Over the years, the trail of the illicit, poppy has taken me into some 35 or more countries. Because of my past "confidential" activities, it is impossible for me to go about completely undercover. People know me. The best I can hope for is a diversion: that interested parties might believe I am looking for something other than what I am—for life is cheap where I go and those who deal in dope play for keeps.

The Pennsylvania Story

Await Showdown

My Mason Denison

Harrisburg—With the convention sista now behind them, top flight leaders of both political parties in Pennsylvania are fast settling down for a concentrated three months' buffeting of some five million odd voters of the Keystone State.

To each partisan group, the role Pennsylvania will play in the showdown Nov. 8 is of the utmost importance—basically from a statewide standpoint. Few deny that therein rests the weight that will tip the balance of the scales on either the plus or minus side insofar as the last half of the administration of Democratic Governor

Lawrence is concerned—and perhaps more importantly, become a potentially influencing factor in the governorship race of 1962. The national convention within the past three weeks—which saw young Sen. John F. Kennedy gain the Democratic presidential nod and a shade less "youngish" Richard M. Nixon the Republican nod—are viewed for the most part as curtain-raiser and pace setters of the campaign to come.

One of the stand-out points on which party chieftains are concerned is the fact that they have until September 19 to vary the registration count as it now stands in the state. As the log rests at present, Democrats of the Keystone State are heading into the November showdown as the registration underdog—but this by only a comparatively paltry few thousand.

Although they have succeeded in the past five years in whittling the GOP edge from near one million to near 23,000 at present they know full well that success in November in this state will hinge greatly on their ability to take over the registration edge completely—and incidentally for the first time in the history of the state.

Fused and anxious party leaders admit that with local and state issues secondary to the national race this year they cannot count on the state pull they enjoyed in 1954 and 1958 to heft them over the bump in 1960.

Net result is that Pennsylvania Democrats are embarked upon the most intensive registration drive in their history. A close watch on upcoming proceedings will find a continuation of the "rock-and-roll" strategy of the Democratic National Convention designed to slam-bang new Democratic registrants and a build-up in support of a Democratic voting preference in the November showdown.

In the nationwide orbit Pennsylvania has been placed on the select list for all-out assistance from the national level—with the state organization expected to reciprocate in kind. Big, cumbersome but influential Pennsylvania is viewed as a top prize in the national sweepstakes. The solidification of it into the Democratic fold is viewed as of utmost importance.

There is another factor involved, however. Pennsylvania Democrats, riding high in the power seat at the moment, for understandably selfish reasons are determined to retain their foothold at all costs.

Too much is at stake to gamble on a "weak" or listless campaign this fall—insofar as Pennsylvania alone is concerned. This year by far and wide is viewed as the springboard for the years ahead in the Keystone State—by leaders of both major political parties.

The hairline of decision between "who has what" is too closely defined. The national election this year and its effect on the future Pennsylvania scene insofar as the two parties are concerned, is being viewed as the true plus or minus defining factor for both parties.

Robert Howell and Earl Werkheiser captured a four foot crocodile in the Pocono Creek at the rear of 43 N. Tenth Street. The boys wore boots to protect their legs and feet from a possible attack from the crocodile.

How many remember 40 years ago when the five mile stretch of new concrete highway between Mount Pocono and Tobyhanna was opened?

Rebirth Of Nation

Dear Mr. Editor:

The following literature would correctly be termed under the too seldomly heard nomenclature of "flag-waving." We have a new 50 star flag, and I for one am proud to put it in my hand and heart and wave it for all to see. This is an exercise too many of our citizens neglect and one it would be well for all of us to regenerate.

Vice-President Richard Nixon incited me in his acceptance speech for nomination of the presidency with the proposed new spirit for this country that it so desperately needs.

He seemed not to be campaigning for a public office but to recover for the rebirth of a nation. A nation that has led a world for over a century. For the richest, most powerful, most beautiful nation in that world—the United States of America.

I am a mere youth in this great land. I love America. I also realize just how lucky I am to be here. I have been endowed by my forefathers with the freedom to do and say as I please. My ancestors have fought courageously and laid down their lives to protect these freedoms.

We dare not become delinquent and take their country for granted. They died for a living America. We must be willing to do the same. America must wake up and become zealously and vehemently alive. If the American ideology is to survive and flourish in a world vexed with such tenacity and inequity, it is evident that we, her people must exert a complete and heated resurgence of support to those principals upon which our great nation was founded.

We must adhere to the hope of a free, secure nation and world. God has richly blessed this vast land. He has granted her unheard-of prosperity, resources and opportunity. It is our fervent duty to utilize these gifts to build a nation worthy of the love and respect directed her by the poverty-stricken, sick, and hungry peoples of the tyrannically despotic governments of the world.

With faith in God, we must exploit our incalculable potentials. The worker must fructify our resources, the student must exhaust our mental capacities, our leaders must avail our economic and social systems to their fullest. It is the duty of each and every American citizen to evince and convince this planet that America is still living and growing as the greatest country on the face of the globe.

We are the best—we will, and must, prove it to the rest. But before we build faith in others, we must radiate with a glowing faith in ourselves and in our system.

I am a grand-child; I do not live under Communism. I don't wish for my children to be enslaved under the Communist suzerainty either. Mr. Khrushchev has to be wrong, I, and my generation, the future America, will prove him wrong.

But if we are to do this we must meet the Communist enthusiasm and aggressiveness with a stronger, purer, greater enthusiasm than theirs. And we must conquer them. We shall show them the light, with patience and peace we shall win them, and they will be ours.

All America must fight, and exemplify our ideals, and burn with a glow of hope and peace and faith in ourselves and our Heavenly Master. "That this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

The Allen-Scott Report

Prosecution Weighed

By Robert S. Allen and
Pau Scott

Washington—Attorney General William Rogers is weighing an important decision that could have a decisive effect on whether the racket-crushed in g and monopoly-busting Senator Estes Kefauver stays in the Senate.

The government's chief prosecutor must decide this week on whether to summons a federal grand jury in Tennessee to consider an explosive report involving the hotly contested Senatorial primary between Kefauver and Andrew "Tip" Taylor, a western Tennessee judge.

The report, prepared by the Department's Criminal Division, recommends prosecution of all persons involved in the preparation and distribution of a "doctored" photograph against Senator Kefauver. It reveals that a thorough investigation by Department agents uncovered the unauthorized distribution of a 1956 Kefauver campaign photograph that was drastically altered, mislabeled and did not contain the name or identification of the circulating group.

Specifically, the report states that a group of anti-Kefauver backers took an old photograph of Kefauver with his '56 campaign aides and a group of Negroes and "doctored" it so that it showed the Tennessee Senator conferring alone with the Negroes. The "doctored" photograph was then mislabeled and circulated in strongly pro-segregation areas of Tennessee's western flatlands.

Attorney General Rogers has been quietly examining this report and its recommendations for prosecution for more than two weeks. He even took the document with him to the GOP National Convention in Chicago last week for a final look. Aides are predicting a decision by Rogers at any time.

The Attorney General is feeling the pressure from both sides on what he should do.

Backers of Taylor, who is waging a hard-slugging contest against Kefauver, are urging the Attorney General not to make his decision before Thursday's primary on the grounds that any action by him would in effect be outside intervention in a crucial election.

Supporters of Senator Kefauver are just as demanding that Rogers act affirmatively on the recommendations of his aides.

Both sides in the Senatorial race agree that any move by Rogers before next Thursday could have a decisive impact on the final outcome of the bitterly contested election.

Note: Regardless of the outcome of the all-decisive primary, Senator Kefauver, who is Chairman of the Senate Anti-Trust Subcommittee, is planning to reopen his sensational probe of the underworld's influence in boxing when he returns to Washington later this month. He will make new headlines when his subcommittee reports on a number of major fights that were "fixed."

Michigan Story—Leaders of the two major parties are closely watching developments in the hotly contested Senate race in Michigan, where Senator Patrick McNamara (D., Mich.) is seeking reelection.

Alvin M. Bentley, the GOP nominee, is now convinced that Senator McNamara, who is recovering from an operation, will withdraw from the race soon and that the Democrats will then pick retiring Governor G. Mennen Williams as his opponent.

This is the sensational political report that Vic Johnson, trouble-shooter for the GOP Senate Campaign Committee, gave to Vice President Nixon, the new GOP Presidential nominee, during the GOP National Convention.

Johnson, who sees little chance of the Republicans capturing the McNamara seat, told Nixon that he had received the information from the most reliable sources in both Michigan and Washington, D. C.

Democratic leaders here believe that either McNamara or Williams will be a sure winner in that election.

Water Safety

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.

August means vacations. And vacations usually mean a trip to the lakes or seashore.

I passed along a few water safety tips last May just before the beginning of the vacation and picnic season.

Now that vacation time is actually here for most of you, I would like to list a few more rules for boating and swimming.

Drowning Victims
The majority of drowning victims are under the age of 25. In my home state of Illinois, two out of every five drowning victims are under the age of 20. One out of every 12 is under the age of five.

But adults as well as children should use common sense when boating and swimming. So I offer you the following suggestions for the young ones and the youngsters:

1. Everyone in a boat should be able to swim.
2. Use Life Preservers
3. Don't stand or move around in small boats.

Question And Answer
Mrs. A. R.: Is it harmful for a person with a dropped stomach to drink milk?

Answer: It is not harmful for such a person to drink milk.

Veteran's Guide

Q. When does the Korean GI training program come to an end?

A. January 31, 1965. Meanwhile, Korean veterans have three years from the date of their discharge to begin GI training, and eight years from time of discharge to complete training. But no training may be taken after the January, 1965, cut-off date.

4. Don't use small boats near dams or in rough water.

5. Should the boat capsize but not sink, stay with it. Usually, it is best to cling to the boat until help arrives.

For Swimming
1. If you haven't been feeling well, check with your doctor before going swimming.
2. You should feel relaxed and comfortable after swimming. If you don't feel this way, you have spent too much time and energy in the water. Take it easier the next time.

Look Before Leaping
3. Make sure that there are no rocks or other obstructions in the water before you dive.
4. Don't swim if you are tired or directly after eating.
5. Learn at least a little about lifesaving just in case you should ever need the knowledge.

Take It Easy
6. Take it easy the first time you go swimming during the season. Don't try to swim too far. Remember, if you swim out into the lake, you also have to swim back to shore.
7. It is safest to swim in areas where a lifeguard is present.

8. If you plan to swim a long distance, get another good swimmer to accompany you.

Question And Answer
Mrs. A. R.: Is it harmful for a person with a dropped stomach to drink milk?

Answer: It is not harmful for such a person to drink milk.

Just Between Us—

—By Bobby Westbrook

Rome — But one thing I wonder if I should have had the courage to be is a Christian in the first or second century B.C. We chose a hot Sunday afternoon for our visit to the catacombs and a more moving sermon without words I have never experienced.

We chose to visit the Catacombs of Priscilla and our introduction to them was a far cry from the tour bus visit to St. Sebastian. Herded along like sheep some 50 of us tripped over each other's heels through dark passageways hewn out of tufa — the volcanic rock underlying Rome which is soft and easily cut until exposed to the air when it hardens to a marble-like rock. Lining the passageway, that branched and re-branched to a total of 8 underground miles were the tombs. Most were like filling cabinets in some macabre office — narrow shelves, stripped of their marble closures and inscriptions by successive waves of barbarians, but some still filled with bones.

In such a crowd our unseen guide was only half heard and the pressure of those coming behind made it impossible to ponder what the rare inscriptions addressed to Peter and Paul or sometimes to Paul and Peter might signify. Only too soon we were squeezed out of the catacombs to the somewhat shabby church of San Sebastian with a three dimensional representation of the saint stuck full of three dimensional arrows suspended from the ceiling and from there we were ushered in a "gift" shop and the incongruous sight of brown robed, sandaled monks as clerks selling rosaries and other mementoes.

Far different was our visit sun. We rang a bell and a small nun ushered us into a small convent garden, cool and with the inevitable fountain, with other nuns sitting in the shade, sewing or writing letters.

After getting the keys and a flashlight, unlocking the grille gate and then locking it behind us, she pattered ahead down the stairs and through the tunnel under the street to the catacombs themselves — the oldest in Rome — which were not only the family burial ground of the noble Priscilla family but also of many early Christians to whom they had given room in the underground cemetery in the first half of the second century.

These cemeteries, made necessary by the Roman health law which forbade burial within the city, were also, by Roman the Priscilla Catacombs. Instead of the big billboard along

BPW Members Attend Convention

The regular monthly meeting of the Stroudsburg Business and Professional Women's Club was held July 14 at the home of Mrs. Ann George, White Heron Lake, Marshfield Creek. A covered dish supper was served.

The National Convention of Business and Professional Women's Clubs was held in Philadelphia July 17-22 with the Pennsylvania Federation as hostess. Mrs. Betty Clark, president of the Stroudsburg Club, Mrs. Ruth Rinehart, first vice president and Miss Joyce Rutt, past president attended all sessions of the convention. Mrs. Dorothy Storms, Mrs. Ann George and Mrs. Bernice All, past presidents attended the Thursday and Friday sessions and banquet.

There were approximately 3800 Business and Professional Women attending the Convention including delegates from Alaska and Hawaii.

Miss Grace B. Daniels, of Wilkes-Barre, the National President resided at all sessions when matters of importance were discussed.

The gloom grew darker, despite the lights, and the cold at first so welcome after the heat of the day grew deeper — spreading up from the dirt floor — seeping into your bones from the walls — while all around the shelves of graves — opened and looted by barbarians who had expected Christians like pagans, to be burned with their treasures — yawned around us — some with the bones still resting there — some tiny as vanity table drawers — for the babies.

It wasn't long before she came pattering back with three more visitors — but plenty of time to wonder how it might have been without any lights save the oil lamps — to live there in the dark and cold, surrounded by the dead, and not only to live but to worship — and paint pictures. To think about the family of Priscilla — six of whose sons were martyred for their faith. Six sons!

And to search our own hearts

THE TELEPHONE RINGS . . . And it's Betty Colvin, head of our Wyckoff corset and bra department, who wishes radio publicity on the exciting sale of Playtex Living Bras. Naturally every woman who is figure-conscious will be interested, so we are happy to comply, both on the air and in the column.

If you haven't already heard, here are the facts: you can now buy Playtex's remarkably styled, superbly comfortable and healthful Living Bras, sizes 32A to 42C, at a very special price. The short bandeau is packaged two to a box, and sells at 6.99, 1.01 less than the regular price. The longline is being sold at 4.95 a saving of 1.00. Fashioned of easy-giving nylon elastic these are the most attractive, easy living bras we know. They support and mould the figure without binding or restricting it, and any doctor will tell you that's precisely what a bra should do.

THE MAIL ARRIVES . . . And a woman reader writes, "You mention reading constantly. Will you kindly mention some of the things you are reading? I have not read a book in so long because of home responsibilities, I don't know what to buy."

Well, here are some of the books I've read within the past three weeks: "Portrait in Black," the mystery upon which the new Lana Turner movie is based, "Strangers When We Meet," the book from which the Kirk Douglas-Kim Novack movie, soon to open here in town was made. Both center around the eternal triangle, and the first begins with a murder. They are not deep, but they do make one stop to think about the consequences of actions that involve a fabrication of lies.

"Things that Go Bump in the Night"—a rather humorous, as well as mystifying, collection of ghost stories compiled by Dr. Louis C. Jones of Cooperstown. These stories are entertaining rather than scary, and have been handed down as facts, through the years. Dr. Jones, whom I am interviewing this morning and tomorrow on our Wyckoff radio program (WVPO—9:45) is a witty gentleman who manages to make history sound like fun.

"The Case Against Adolf Eichmann," a paper back edition, that lays the background for Eichmann's actions, traces his evil progress through one of the wickedest regimes the world has ever known, and tells how he was traced, captured, and taken to Israel to stand trial. Incidentally, "Portrait in Black" and "Strangers etc." are also paperback editions . . . easy to hold in bed, and they don't thud when you fall asleep and they tumble to the floor. Fine too for invalids.

Then, from our Modern Library series at Wyckoffs, I am also reading "Out of Africa" by Isak Dinesen on the recommendation of a gentleman I met in Cooperstown. The descriptions are just as beautiful as he said they were . . . and the book, even though written a number of years ago, give one an understanding of why things are as they are right now on the Dark Continent.

Some of these selections may appeal to you—at least they are diversified and require not too much concentration as one reads. Also, I might mention that Zsa Zsa Gabor's story and Alexander King's Evocations of Love, both in McCall's, are entertaining, and you can buy the magazine here in our Wyckoff stationery department.

Wonder if you've been in to meet Joe and Pat Nazzo, and see their stunning array of budget-priced rings with that "precious look"? Ask them about the new man-made Diamond Ray, so amazingly like the genuine stone! The young man in search of an engagement ring should be interested, I'm sure.

NINETY YEARS did not show yesterday as Mrs. Eva Lee of Minisink Hills greeted her first guests at the Open House held in honor of her ninetieth birthday which is Wednesday.

Mrs. Eva Lee Doesn't Show Ninety Years Of Living

Going to the polls to vote has been a faithful occurrence in the life of Mrs. Eva Lee since 1920, when women were granted the right to vote. Granted, many people going to the polls in November will have been voting since the 20's but not so many of them will be 90 when they do so.

Mrs. Lee who lives with her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lee, Minisink Hills, was born August 3, 1870 and celebrated her birthday with an Open House yesterday.

Ninety years of life does not come as a surprise to Mrs. Lee, as her father lived to be 101 years of age. Prior to her marriage to the late Walter J. Lee of New York, she kept books and helped her father in the business end of his construction business in New York State.

Mrs. Lee's husband ran the United States outlet of his father's business and saddlery business which had its home in England. The business functioned until the convenience of the automobile. Mrs. Lee has been to Europe several times, once for her honeymoon in 1897. She has also journeyed to California but has yet to travel there by jet plane.

She was born in New York City and as a girl, moved to White Plains, N.Y. She lived there with her two sisters until two years ago.

Helping her to celebrate are her two nieces from White Plains, Miss Elmer Richards and Mrs. Harry Young.

Bjork Family Entertained At Picnic Dinner

Rev. and Mrs. Carl Bjork and children, Susan and Eric of Rosnoke, Va. were given a surprise picnic dinner recently at Shafers School House Park. The picnic was given by members of the Monday Bible Class of which Rev. Bjork was teacher while a resident of Stroudsburg.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. William George, Mrs. Lucy Barry, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Marvin, Mr. and Mrs. Doc Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hinton, Mrs. Ethel Lesoine, Mrs. Robert Decker and daughter, Mrs. Grace Transue and Mrs. Miller.

Luther League Holds Outing

On July 25, the Luther League of St. John's Lutheran Church of Stroudsburg held an outing at Tobyhanna State Park.

Swimming and boating preceded a picnic supper, followed by a short business meeting.

Members attending were: Cathy Bolcar, Linda Balmoo, Esta May Clifton, Barbara Baird, Mary Lou Hardenstine, Susan Steinhauer, Sue Haney, Connie Puzio, Martha Ruloff, Charlene Widmer, Karl Stabenow, Larry Nunn, Frank Puleo, Danna Ayers, Gay Johnson, Judy Duncan, Bessie Elwine, Susie Bowers, Maria Sue Krawsky, and Marcia Spelser. Adults attending were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Decker, Sr., Mrs. Forrest Haney, Rev. Charles Ruloff and Richard Astheimer. Guests were: Pat Doll, Joy Miller, Sharon Beldler and Russell Decker, Jr.

Daring Darters Form 4-H Group

The Poplar and Cherry Valley 4-H Club met at the home of Mrs. Ralph Moyer last week. Jean Dennis, president, conducted the business meeting and the girls voted to name the club the "Daring Darters."

Experience in the painting and decorating field is Hamill's greatest asset. They have been exposed to this art for more than 30 years.
If you have plans for painting the exterior of your home there is still time to do the job properly, before fall.
One of the most amazing paints at Hamill's is Felton-Sibley's Blister-Resistant House Paint. This paint was developed under the most rigid requirements of quality and workmanship.
Blister-Resistant is fume resistant, mildew resistant, applicable to all surfaces, is known for its easy brushing and of course is blister-resistant. Applied properly Blister-Resistant will give your home maximum protection and is highly durable.
Another new paint on the scene at Hamill's, and put out by Felton-Sibley is Super-Flex. An exterior vinyl base paint, Super-Flex is applicable to all surfaces suitably primed, and asbestos shingles and masonry not previously painted do not need to be primed.
Super-Flex dries quickly, to a rich low lustre producing a non-fading color. It goes on easily and you can wash brushes in ordinary tap water.
There are many other exterior paints at Hamill's by Felton-Sibley and among them is Diamond Deck and Floor enamel that works equally as well inside and outside. They resist severe wear and their durability is amazing.
Merritt and Carl Hamill will cheerfully answer any question you might have concerning your painting or decorating problems.

Norcross Retires From WU

WILKES-BARRE — John R. Norcross, Sr., of 26 North Thomas St., Kingston, last week ended a distinguished career with the Western Union Telegraph Co.

He was honored Saturday at a testimonial given by co-workers at the Dresden in Wilkes-Barre.

Norcross, whose latest assignment was sectional maintenance chief with headquarters in Wilkes-Barre, has been with Western Union for nearly 45 years.

He joined the company at Charlottesville, Va. in 1916 as a cook's helper on a construction crew camp car. A short time later, he was advanced to cook.

The following year he became a lineman and was assigned to construction work in Connecticut and during the same year was sent to Moscow, to work on erection of telegraph lines on the Lackawanna Railroad.

Norcross first came to Wilkes-Barre in 1919 and the next year was sent to Scranton where he served for a five year period before returning to this city. He has served in Wilkes-Barre for the past 35 years.

Stroudsburg Area
In his job as section maintenance chief, Norcross has had charge of all maintenance work in a vast region of northeastern Pennsylvania. His area extended to Stroudsburg, Hazleton, Bloomsburg, Berwick and Nesquehoning.

He is married to the former Jean Sherbine. They have three sons, John, Jr., Kingston, Albany, Forty Fort and Merl, Worcester, Mass., and a daughter, Mrs. William Littleton, Forty Fort and eight grandchildren.

McCool Boy Entered In Junior Shoot

CLINTON McCool, 14, of Henryville, is one of two junior shooters who will go to the National Shooting Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, later this month, representing Pennsylvania.

Clinton shot a 232 out of a possible 250 at the Eastern Pennsylvania 30 Calibre League Matches in Indiantown Gap yesterday.

He was shooting against approximately 200 shooters using an Army M-1 rifle. His father, Tom McCool, won the match with a 241 out of the 250.

Young McCool will be firing both M-1s and 45 calibre pistols at the Ohio meet.

Beauty Winner Had Local Relatives

IF WILLIAM and Katherine Hamer, who once lived at the corner of Quaker Alley and Fifth St., Stroudsburg, were alive today they would be mighty proud.

The reason: their great granddaughter was selected as an entry in the recent Miss Universe contest and was considered by many as one of the prettiest girls in the competition.

Corrine Huff, 19-year-old Miss Ohio, never knew her great grandparents, but there are a number of people in the Stroudsburgs who recall the girl's family.

The great grandfather operated a radio repair shop in Stroudsburg for several years before his death.

Corrine was named the winner of the Miss Ohio title when Cathy Justice was disqualified because of her age. Entries in the Miss Universe Contest must be 18 years old and Cathy is only 17.

Winning the title was not the only honor Corrine received. She is the first Negro to ever win a statewide beauty contest.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Huff of New Castle, but lives with an aunt and uncle in Youngstown where she is a student at Youngstown University.

Corrine graduated from New

Jealous Rival Charged With Slaying Youth

FAIR LAWN, N.J. (AP)—Teen-aged jealousy over a high school beauty resulted in the shotgun killing Saturday night of Thomas E. Stillwachs, police said.

Joseph F. Chillemi, 17, was charged with murder in the death of his rival. Police said Chillemi thrust a shotgun into the parked car in which Stillwachs, 18, was sitting and fired.

One of the horrified teen-aged witnesses was the 16-year-old part-time model when both Stillwachs and Chillemi wanted to date.

Police Lt. Carl Jacoby gave this account: The killing occurred after a night of roadside heckling between Stillwachs and his friends and a group with Chillemi. Each group was in a car. They exchanged taunts at red lights and drive-ins and finally pulled up at Chillemi's house in Fair Lawn.

Ignored Mother
Chillemi ignored his mother's pleas as he ran out of the house toward the Stillwachs car with the 12-gauge single-barreled shotgun. Then he fired. The teen-agers drove to a nearby phone and called police.

The dead boy's father, Otto Stillwachs, who had employed both his son and Chillemi at his auto body repair firm at Paterson, said: "I just feel very very bad that Chillemi didn't use better sense or judgment."
Stillwachs and Chillemi had known each other for five months, meeting because of the girl. The girl, whose name was not disclosed because of her age, was described as a beauty who had done some modeling.

Ogrodoski Wins Pocono Golf In Playoff

CHET OGDOSKI took advantage of a two-under par 71, a lake, a metal fence post and a perfectly executed sand shot, to win the Pocono Mountain Amateur Golf Championship at Glen Brook Country Club yesterday in a sudden death playoff.

Ogrodoski defeated the first day leader Harold Storm on the second extra hole, after the pair tied with 150s at the end of the regulation 36-hole round.

Going into the final hole, Ogrodski, who trailed Storm by five strokes at the beginning of the day, was still two shots back.

But Storm hooked his drive into a lake bordering the 18th fairway and had to take a penalty stroke.

Little Hope

Until that point, it appeared that Ogrodoski's bid to overtake the defending Glen Brook club champion, would fall short even though he was two under par.

Ogrodoski split the middle with his drive and drilled a seven-dron 40 feet from the pin, on the low side of the green.

It took Storm four shots to reach the green and two putts to get down. He holed out ahead of Ogrodoski, who rapped his approach putt four-feet past the pin. He had to drop the downhill putt for a par and a first place tie. He stroked the ball into the center of the cup to send the match back to the first tee. Storm ended with a 75 and Ogrodoski had a 71.

It was Ogrodoski's turn to hook his drive this time. He hit a low twisting hook into a crowd of some 100 spectators standing on the ladies' tee.

Post Hole

The ball was heading for the marshy rough and a certain unplayable lie, when it struck a metal fence post and bounced back into the fairway. However, Ogrodoski was still 250 yards from the green and his victory chances lessened when Storm, with what appeared to be one final effort, slammed his drive to within 100-yards of the par four hole.

Ogrodoski, who said later that he wanted to hook the ball on number one, because he pushed his tee shot into the righthand rough on the initial trip down the first, stroked a two wood to the front apron of the small green.

Storm was too strong on his shot and flew the ball over the green, narrowly missing going out of bounds. He chipped back to within six feet of the cup but missed the putt.

Second Miss

Ogrodoski rolled his third shot four feet from the hole but also missed his putt.

The paper-mill foreman made his second straight bid to give the tournament away on the second hole, a 200-yard three-iron shot into a sand trap, to the left of the green and Storm followed with a shot that stopped four feet from the green.

Ogrodoski had a good lie but the hard rains Saturday and the high temperatures Sunday had baked the sand. He cut the ball over a mound that restricted his vision of the pin and left himself with a four foot putt.

Two Putts

Storm barely got his ball on the green with his approach and two putts for a four. Without a moment's delay, Ogrodoski, the fastest player in the 81-man field, rapped in the winning putt.

It was a tough break for Storm, who had turned in an unbelievable 36 on the frontside in Saturday's downpour, that at times left two inches of water on the green and had players putting with five and six irons. Ogrodoski was in a two-way tie for third place with Tom Levendusky of Palmerton, after the first day.

Irving Somers, who wound-up fourth, started Sunday's round in second, two strokes back of Storm.

But Somers quickly shot himself out of contention, going two over par after three holes and finishing five over par on the front side.

Battle Lines

With Somers stumbling, the battle centered on Storm and Ogrodoski, who less than a month ago teamed to win the John Allan Memorial Best Ball tournament at Pittsford.

A bogey five after an out-of-bounds second shot on the first hole, put Ogrodoski six strokes back of Storm. But a par on the next hole and Storm's bogey reduced the difference to five again.

Storm bogied the fifth to slice his lead to four and Ogrodoski birdied six and nine to start the back side only two strokes down.

The pair parred the 10th but Ogrodoski topped his tee shot on 11 and took a bogey. He charged back with a bird on 12 and he and Storm both missed short birdie putts on 13. They each birdied 14, parred 15, 16 and 17, to set the stage for the breath-holding finish.

Not Cozy

Storm said in the clubhouse later that he thought he played too conservatively. "The front runner can usually play it cozy," he said, "but when your lead starts to go, you have to change."

But it was a day for conservative play. Ogrodoski was content to keep the ball in play and wait for Storms to make the errors.

On the par five, 17, Ogrodoski was faced with a 250 yard carry to the green.

He used a two-iron and fell 70-yards short of the green. "If I had hit a three wood, I might have gone over and finished fourth," Levendusky, who strokes his long putts and then pulls an imaginary string to guide the ball, won the consolation 18-hole flight with a 73.

The 16 players in the championship flight with the exception of the tourney champion used their Sunday score for the event.

TOURNAMENT NOTES

John Fish, who won the first flight, posted the second best score in Sunday's round a one-under 71. Only two eagles were recorded in the tournament, one by Bob Schell Sr. on the 13th and the other by Danny Pace on six. Pace canned his third shot from 100-yards out, after missing his drive.

When Schell kidded his son Bob Jr., who helped broadcast the tournament along with Joe Whalen on WVPO, because he didn't mention his eagle, the younger Schell replied, "But we only have five-minute broadcasts."

Harold Stettler had so much trouble gripping his clubs in Saturday's rain that on the sixth hole the club flew out of his hands and lodged in a tree limb, 30 feet in the air.

Stettler had to scale the tree to retrieve his club.

And one golfer after viewing the soggy conditions Saturday, was asked if he wanted a caddy. "Forget about the caddy," he quipped, "send me a life guard."

Strouds Win On Barrow's 3-Hitter

THE STROUDS pulled the strings on Bath yesterday afternoon as they upset the Blue Mountain League leaders 2-1 at Gordon Giffels.

They surprised the home fans by rallying for two runs in the initial inning and slammed every Bath at-batter to break even.

Barrow went all the way to gain the verdict. He allowed but three safeties in a tight pitching duel with Bath's Arner. The losing pitcher gave up four hits, two of which went to third baseman McCormick. Brunner and Morris anchored one each also for the winners.

Keeps Going

In the Stroud first frame, Piazza walked, Howe sacrificed him to second and Brunner whipped in the lead run on a single. Instead of stopping at first, Brunner continued to second as the throw went to the plate in an attempt to catch

Wage Chess Title Battle

A BATTLE in the Stroudsburg Chess Club for the chief contender role was waged by James Heatherington of East Stroudsburg and Earl Weiss, of Southside, Stroudsburg.

Heatherington assumed the title by defeating Weiss in three games after some brilliant playing on each side.

Weiss started off the matches playing two of the minor contenders Louis Mondelle and William P. Deering. He defeated Mondelle in two games but drew a tie with Deering.

Heatherington is now the top contender for a battle with chess champion, Harold N. James.

State Nixes Sewage Proposal

HARRISBURG (AP) — The State Sanitary Water Board has turned down a proposal by the borough of Kingston, Luzerne County, to discharge sewage into abandoned coal mines.

Municipal authorities had asked approval of a plan for drilling four bore holes through which it would discharge raw sewage into the abandoned tunnels, then pump it into the North Branch of the Susquehanna River.

Dear Abby

Take The Reins, Pop

Dear Abby: What is the matter with my wife? She says she can't bear to cut off our boy's curls.

This kid is three years old and looks like a girl. He's our only child. When he was born, my wife cried for a week because he wasn't a girl.

She has had our boy in the barber's chair twice and each time the barber would reach for the scissors, she'd snatch the boy out of the chair saying she couldn't go through with it.

The boy is unhappy because the older kids tease him. Can you offer a solution?

FATHER OF THE BOY

Dear Father: Get your son into a barber's chair before he winds up on a psychiatrist's couch! Your wife's refusal to accept the fact that she has a son — not the hoped-for daughter — indicates that she could be disturbed mentally. Separate the boy from the curls and then do what is necessary to separate your wife from some of her ideas.

Dear Abby: I wish you could help me get a 12-year-old neighbor girl to stay at home during our supper hour. Her people are well-to-do, so she can't be hungry.

She makes it a point to walk in just as we start a meal. I have invited her to eat with us many times, but I don't want her every day. She stands around leaning on the children's chairs, whispering and giggling. How can I handle this without causing embarrassment or hurt feelings?

TENDER-HEARTED

Dear Tender-Hearted: Catch this girl when she is alone and tell her in a nice way that she should not visit during the supper hour because that's "family time" and it disturbs the children. If she doesn't respect your wishes, ask for her mother's cooperation.

Dear Abby: I have been married to a most wonderful man for 23 years. He is very considerate and thoughtful. He doesn't drink, curse or raise his voice. He has never once opened his own pay envelope. He brings it to me and I take what I need. My only complaint is that he always leaves his shoes in the living room.

I have asked him many times to please put them away, but every morning I find them in the living room. It drives me crazy. I've tried everything, but all I get is shoes, shoes and more shoes. What should I do?

SICK OF SHOES

Dear Sick: If this is your biggest problem, give thanks. Pick up his shoes—and cheerfully. A nagging wife is the reason why so many men have come to drop their shoes in somebody else's living room.

Confidential To H. H.: There is an old Chinese proverb you should paste in your hat. "The mouth is wind but the pen leaves tracks." Be careful of what you say—but be doubly careful of what you put in writing.

Peter Lenahan

Gigi Opens Tuesday At Ross Common

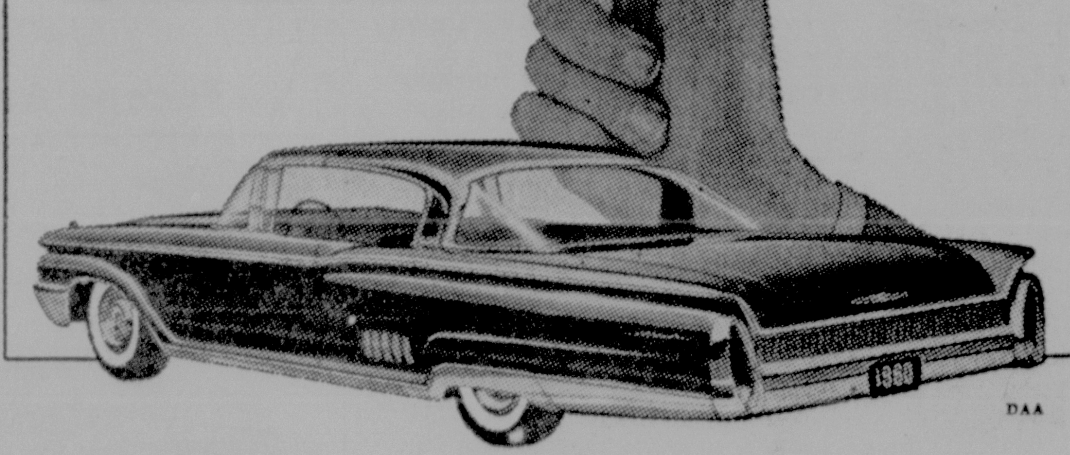

PETER LENAHAN will play the male lead in "Gigi" opening Tuesday at Ross Common Playhouse.

Lenahan may seem an unlikely name for an actor who is playing a sophisticated Frenchman in Anita Loos' comedy. But Peter is a versatile actor and has played in such off-Broadway productions as "Billy Budd" and "The Alchemist."

His movie credits include "The Midnight Story" with Tony Curtis and "Never Steal Anything Small" with James Cagney. He has appeared on TV in the Hallmark Show, "The Lineup," "The Verdict is Yours" and the DuPont show, among others.

For Abby's pamphlet, "What Teen-Agers Want To Know," send 25c and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope in care of this paper.
